THE TURNING POINT – Approaches to Sustainable Architecture

We are at a turning point, marked by ecological and associated social demands – especially on built architecture. Sustainable building is required. Innovative approaches, best practices for sustainable architecture and urban living spaces for climate and socially appropriate built environments with architectural quality are emerging.

For 12 years now, prominent architects from all over the world have been presenting outstanding examples of best practice at the International ArchitectureForum – the state of the art. And it still is in 2022.
